John Wilson, William Williamson, James Wilson, John Wilson. Dear ffriends

Having appointed you my Trustees touching and concerning my estate and effects in Great Britain, and Executors of my last Will, &c., and having in my said will given unto my cousin, John Bell, of Bromley, £100 in trust only, I direct the said froo to be for the use and behoof of poor children of the Hospital or Workhouse of Friends of the people called Quakers at Clerkenwell Green, London. And Whereas by my said Will I have given to you, the said John Wilson, &c. £30, in trust only, I direct and declare my true intent and meaning is for poor friends of the Monthly Meeting of the people called Quakers at Carlisle in Cumberland. And Whereas I have given to Mary Elwood, of Kendal, £50, the same shall be paid her by you and not to any other person except unto Sarah Tinling, sister of the said Mary Elwood, in case of her death. And Whereas the residue of my personal estate I give and bequeath unto themselves the said John Wilson, &c., in trust for such uses, &c., as I shall direct. That is to say, I have many loose undigested papers relating to my Travells in the service of Truth in a trunk at my lodgings in London [no doubt at his usual lodging as he calls it, then Elizabeth Greens in Duke Street, Spitalfields] which I desire may be carefully perused and ratified by any of you or such persons as you shall appoint. And if any thing in any of them be thought of any service to the Divine Truth you may lay them before some competent Friends to whom and you they are submitted, since I have not been ostentatious or vain glorious that way or desired a name or Record upon Earth, but only keep Notes and Memorials of Occurrences particular more in my Travels therein in the service of Truth according to the Dispensation thereof to me committed unto that end, if then I say if any of those papers (a Collection whereof J have already begun) may be of any service worthy of the charge I desire that the residue and remainder of any of the money arising by sales of my said messuages, &c., and the residue of my personal estate shall be duly applied to the tenor of my Will but if they be not useful or worthy then my Will is that the residuary part of my Estate arising from the sales of messuages, &c., devised unto you, I bequeath (in that case) unto my said sister Anne Eliott, Catherine Eliott and Elin Eliott and unto them the said Edward Shippen, Margaret Jekyle, William Shippen and Anne Shippen in equal shares.

Dated 7 September, 1741.

ANNA ELIZABETH DICKINSON (xvii. 127).—The Public Ledger, Philadelphia, is running a series of "Pennsylvanians Past and Present." The fifty-fourth deals with A. E. Dickinson, "American orator, novelist and playwright, born in Philadelphia, October 26, 1842. She was the daughter of John and Mary Edmundson Dickinson, both orthodox Quakers. The father was a merchant, and an active abolitionist, but failed in business and died soon after, leaving his wife with five children, Anna, the youngest, but two years old.

"She was a restless child and impatient of restraint, and early developed a keen love of justice, fostered and confirmed by listening to the recitals of the horrors of slavery in the anti-slavery offices of that city. She wrote articles on slavery for the Liberator and made her first appearance as a public speaker in 1857 at a meeting of Progressive Friends. She then determined to make lecturing her career. . . . She gained a splendid personal triumph. She was called the ' Joan of Arc' of the Civil War. In 1876 she left the platform for the stage, . . . but finally gave up the profession and returned to the lecture platform, writing occasionally for the current periodicals." No date of death is given.
